Rain of Paper Money Starting to Findlay, Ohio

FINDLAY, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Francis men looked in amazement recently at many pieces of paper money being jugged by air currents fifty feet in the air, and thought it only stage money. When the wind subsided and the money came to earth they saw it was real Uncle Sam stuff and began picking it up.

About that time Mrs. Albert Robarge missed $57 in bills, and the money was given her. She had come down-town to get money to pay some bills, but a store window trimmed with women's wearing apparel attracted her attention. Her husband, in which the bills had been placed, was open. A heavy wind struck the open purse, sucked out the bills and started them skyward.

TURKS TORTURE FOUR EDUCATORS TO DEATH

Letter Tells of Terrible End of Four Native Professors at American College.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Four professors of the Euphrates American College, founded by American missionaries at Harput, Armenia, were horribly tortured by the Turks before being put to death, according to a letter made public here today by the Rev. Keating Smith, of Springfield, Mass.

The hair and mustache of one professor were pulled out by the roots. The nails of another were pulled out with pliers.

Young girls were carried away to harems, the letter said. The letter was written by an American connected with the college. Mr. Smith said, and was addressed to Bishop Casparian, of Boston. It is dated July 18, 1915, but the name of the writer is withheld, in the fear that he may be hunted and killed by the Turks.

Fourteen professors were engaged in instructing 150 Armenian students, two-thirds of them girls, in American ideas when the war broke out, it was stated. The Turkish authorities took over seven of the eight buildings of the school.

"Seven native professors, educated in America, were taken from the college," the writer said. "Four were killed; three are still living."

"Prof. Tenekelian, who had taught mathematics for thirty-five years and was my personal friend, was taken prisoner on May 1. The hairs of his head, his mustache, and his beard were pulled out by the roots. He was held by soldiers, and as his hair was long it was actually wrenched out by the handful. This was done in an attempt to force him to confess that he was involved in some political plot. "He was kept without food many days, and was then hung from a beam all day, suspended by a rope tied to one arm, and then the following night by a rope tied to one leg, hanging upside down. He was then taken down, nearly dead from strangulation and asphyxiation, and beaten and then forced to make his way as best he could on foot seventy-five kilometers toward Diarbekir. On the way he was killed."

"Prof. Nakhigian, teacher for thirty years, was taken June 6 and sent in exile to Diarbekir, but on the way he was killed."

"Prof. Bookenian, for sixteen years a teacher, was taken May 1 and treated in the same manner as Prof. Tenekelian, but to add to his torture, his nails were pulled out by pliers. He was also called to Diarbekir, but shot on the way."

"Prof. Oeporian, teaching literature and history for twenty years and who, only last year, spent a twelve-month vacation in America, studying most of the time at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. (I am told he was at Trinity), said he returned to Armenia because he felt it to be his duty. Prof. Oeporian arrived here with his family and was teaching once more in the college when the present war broke out. He was imprisoned in July and was forced to witness some Turkish officials beat an Armenian to death. The professor lost his reason, as he knew his turn was coming next. He was sent insane, with his family, to a mental hospital, where he died before reaching there. He was killed before the eyes of his family."

"Prof. Boghigian, head master of the college for twenty years, was taken prisoner May 1, but, having become ill, he escaped torture. He was sent to a Turkish hospital, where later he bribed Turkish officers and escaped. He is now believed to be in hiding."

"Prof. Khachadorian, fifteen years a teacher in the college, escaped because he was a personal friend of the Turkish khaimakan (mayor) of the city."

"Prof. Lulelian, biology, said to be a graduate of Cornell and Yale, was taken June 5, heavily bastinadoed and the soles of his feet beaten with a club shaped like a baseball bat, several hundred blows on each foot. His feet were so swollen and mashed that he lost consciousness."

PIGS FED ON SNAKES IN DEMAND AS FOOD

Jersey Farmer in Despair Over Growing Scarcity of the Reptiles.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 1.—Elmer Reichard, a farmer, who lives near Gallop Hill, has discovered that feeding pigs on snakes is a delicious flavor to the pork. Reichard's farm is in the wooded region between Roselle and Elizabeth, and is infested with snakes. Reichard determined to eliminate them. As a preliminary step he bought several specimens of a breed of small black pigs. These he turned loose in the woods.

Reichard received a surprise a few days ago in the form of a letter from a New York restaurant which, after several weeks, had succeeded in tracing to Reichard a shipment of pork which had caused much favorable comment by patrons. It appeared that the pork had a peculiarly rich, gamey flavor, and the restaurant proprietor, contracted with Reichard for all the pork he could raise.

The growing scarcity of snakes has forced Reichard to search for substitutes. He is hopeful that he may be able to prove that the peculiar taste of the meat does not come from snakes, but from various roots which he has observed the pigs eating.
